

Occupations 2

by Ben Romero

In the realm of occupations, the paths of becoming a lawyer and a doctor are often highly regarded. Lawyers, with their expertise in law, help people navigate legal complexities, ensuring justice prevails. On the other hand, doctors, with their medical knowledge, heal the sick and enhance the quality of life. Both professions demand dedication, passion, and years of rigorous education.

Some may argue that being a lawyer allows for societal change through legal reforms, while others may emphasize the nobility of saving lives as a doctor. Each profession offers unique challenges and rewards, making the choice between them deeply personal.

1. What is the main focus of lawyers and doctors according to the passage?

- A) Lawyers focus on medical knowledge, while doctors navigate legal complexities.
- B) Lawyers help people with legal matters, while doctors heal the sick and improve quality of life.
- C) Lawyers and doctors both primarily work on societal reforms.
- D) Lawyers and doctors focus on engineering and construction projects.

2. What qualities are mentioned as essential for both lawyers and doctors?

- A) Compassion, dedication, and expertise in law.
- B) Passion, creativity, and artistic skills.
- C) Technical knowledge, programming skills, and problem-solving abilities.
- D) Athleticism, coordination, and physical strength.

3. Why might someone choose to be a lawyer according to the passage?

- A) To perform life-saving surgeries.
- B) To help people with legal issues and contribute to legal reforms.
- C) To create innovative medical treatments.
- D) To design architectural marvels.